Presenting Examples of Proven Success

interventions.equityideas.eu

The IDEAS database contains over 50 examples of equity interventions from around the world. Each intervention is defined as a specific programme, project or activity, which was designed to improve access to, participation in or completion of Higher Education for students from underrepresented groups. We are specifically looking for interventions that were implemented at micro- and meso- levels, i.e. by individual institutions, departments, NGOs or individuals and which show good practice by having their success proved in terms of:

- time (long-runinng)
- measurable results
- efficiency becouse they can be replicated in a fairly short time with a limited amount of resources
- innovation in their aims & way of implementation
- supporting the visibility of and success of underrepresented groups

Contribute a Case

We are constantly on the lookout for more examples of equity interventions. If you know of a case which could enrich our database, please get in contact through the URL, let us know what you did, how it worked and why it worked.

Engage with our Activities

We are presenting the cases and the lessons learned at a series of lecture and discussion events around the globe. At each stop, we not only present our results, but engage in discussion with local participants, learn about the context, and feed the experiences of those activities back into our analysis. Find out when we'll visit your city, or how to invite us to visit your event.

What are we doing?

IDEAS aims to:

- Create a database of initiatives, programmes and projects for enhancing equity in access, participation and completion of Higher Education from across Europe;

- Screen the database for evidence of a casual link between the initiatives and improvements in equity for their target groups;

- Understand the environmental, social and political enabling factors which allow successful examples of practices to take root;

- Select successful examples that can be replicated and disseminated widely to promote piloting and scaling up in institutions throughout Europe.
